   A. Committee picture Everyone we’ll see in the future
   B. T-Shirts- Scott
      200 shirts (multiple colors/sizes) = 1400$, polos = 27$ Too expensive, not best for advertising (people have lots of shirts), incentive for people to come early (1st 50 get shirts, exclusivity), incentive to stay (give away at lunch), wait for wanted swag list (see what is the most cost-effective use of swag fund), committee should have shirts (so people can ask questions), T-shirt day is most popular grad day, always ‘sell’ entire stock, have a lot of low-cost swag (e.g. buttons, stickers, pens) and some ‘prized’ swag (e.g. shirt), raffle was successful. Look at tiered swag after survey: low-tier for everyone, high-tier for raffle.

      Cost?: pens, highlighter, tabs, phone sleeve/clip Raffle: mugs, bags, shirts, other clothing items, misc (fidget, stressball)

   C. Google Survey for students: (e-mail from Morgan to Scott) If reaction to swag Q is low, pull back. Survey approved. Should we give swag to incentivize survey? Last survey was well-received without incentives. Added a question to survey (1st Q). Survey approved w/condition of revision. Put on GSA website (then grad school web and other places)
